CORe is an excellent resource for UPCEA members for networking and collaborating in real-time. It helps me get answers to questions related to online learning, faculty training, and LMS transitions. I have learned a great deal about how other universities approach a variety of situations. I also feel great that I can help others. It's difficult to get user-validated information and help, and I know I can always turn to the discussion areas and find some possible solutions that others have already vetted. This resource is an excellent way to get help, offer help to others, and network on a regular basis.
